

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A precursor of a silicate phosphor is formed by mixing a silicon system liquid material, in which a silicon system material is dispersed in a liquid, with a metal system liquid material including a metallic element, and the silicate phosphor is obtained by calcining the obtained precursor.